INTRODUCTION

"No man has the right to dictate what other men should perceive, create or produce, but all should be encouraged to reveal themselves, their perceptions and emotions, and to build confidence in the creative spirit."

ANSEL ADAMS

Hey, fine art photographer, let's get you inspired and on to your newest adventure!

Believe it or not, this is the world's first fine art photography planner. It's not a planner from some random publishing company that makes planners and journals for the masses, no. This planner was created by me, your humble landscape and fine art photographer, Moshe Levis. You see, I love writing, especially about my photography adventures but I usually write after the adventure ended and I'm back home. It's not the worst thing in the world, but by then I tend to leave out some small, yet powerful, details about a certain photo or moment full of different feelings and thoughts that I simply forget about.

This planner helped me and others like me to change that and include everything in my stories. The beauty of this planner is that its battery life is infinite, unlike our phones, tablets and computers that can simply die while we travel and being inspired to write about our adventure.

Aside from improving your photography writing skills and help you be more consistent doing so, it includes pages that can help you plan your future trips and even specific shots you have in mind.

Use this planner every single day of your adventure, or every time you start planning a new adventure that includes photography. The photography in this planner is not restricted to landscape, hence the Landscape & Fine Art Photography. There are so many genres of photography that it would just be unfair to limit it to one.

By using this planner you can also increase your online visibility. How? Just by having stories upon stories written down you can schedule Instagram and Facebook posts for days to come. Something that was always a problem for me. Again, consistency.

THE PAGES INSIDE

Destination Wish List
We all have different kinds of bucket lists and they are all filled with so much goodness. We wish and hope for so many things, even us photographers have our own bucket list type. We call them destinations. In these pages you must write all the destinations you wish to visit and photograph or photograph at. I said you must, because it's more likely to happen if it's written down and you see it all the time.

Measures & Conversions
Photography is done worldwide and as we know, people use different values in different countries, so these pages will help you convert sizes and dimensions when needed. Other than conversions you'll learn values that are important to photography and you must know them in order to improve your photography skills. Values like aperture, ISO, Shutter Speed, etc.

Monthly Calendar
A monthly overview lets you plan your coming photography adventures. Give it a glimpse once or twice a week to make sure you remember when, what and who you made plans with.

Daily Planner
Yeah that's right. I skipped the weekly planner completely. You'll find that these daily planner pages are much more effective than any others you've seen so far. What's the secret? Aside from having useful photography tips and space to write in, you'll see a whopping 24 hour day schedule!

Trip Planner
These are the two most impotent pages you'll fill out before going on your trips and when planning your next adventures. The pages will help you know your destination, its weather conditions, sun times, moon phases and a list of things you should take with you, from gear and clothing to food and important items.

Shot Planner
We don't always plan our shots and how they'll come out. Many times it's due to nature and the fact that it's no as predictable as we want it to be (Predicting the weather doesn't always help), so when it's not up to the weather to decide what our photos will look like it's up to us and if we plan correctly we'll get the pictures we want the world to see. We are artists after all, don't forget that.

Photo Story
Every photo you ever capture have a story to tell. It's important to know how to tell it without any words but often times it's more interesting to learn how the shot was taken and what lead to it. People want to know what you felt right before, during and after you pressed the shutter release button. Make them drool. Make them want to know more. Make them feel like they are standing right next to you as that lightning strikes a tree three feet away from you.

Project Planner

When it comes to planning a project, what do we do? Let's be honest here, most of us are just winging it. We let the project take control of us and our creativity. It's time we took back what's rightfully ours! - So dramatic - It's time for us to control our project.

Travel Contacts

O that's right, you have a smartphone. That's OK, I don't care, in a chance that at least one person holding this planner in their hands, don't have one. Or maybe they lost it on the way to New Zealand.

What other reasons can I give you? Let's see: your battery died, you forgot your security code, you forgot to actually put down the information in your phone, your travel notes suddenly got deleted for no damn reason, your girlfriend is playing an exciting game on it and if you'll take it from her your trip will be over just like her game, you're on an important phone call and you don't have headphones so you can't put the call on speaker, you dropped your phone in the airport's toilet and even though it's water proof you have to admit it stinks, your phone decides to update itself out of the blue and you can't use it until it's done... damn! Our phones suck! So... Travel Contacts. Thank me later.

Moments

As photographers, as absurd as it may sound, we don't get to enjoy those once in a lifetime moments we experience. We are there, in the moment, be we're too focused on capturing it for everyone else to imagine how that moment felt to us.
I urge you to be in the moment when you're capturing your next images. I urge you to take MOSH with you. Describe what you hear, smell, what emotions erupt, what's the weather like, what are you learning... and then press the shutter release button.

Ok. Ok. You should probably press the button before, so you won't lose that shot.

Photo Contests

Contests... What can I tell you about contests? Some of them are simply a scam, there's no argument there but some of them are so fucking awesome because you can win high-end equipment and thousands of dollars, but the truth (to some of us) is that we just want to see our photos published in magazines and on huge ass billboards. Some contests will make that happen.

Through these pages you'll be able to track what photo contests you enter and how they progress. If you ever get scammed on one of them, let it go and invest your energies on more positive actions. Yeah, I'm talking from experience. That's the great thing about having a planner for photographers made by a photographer - I CAN RELATE!

Free Draw

We are photographers, meaning, we are artists. That doesn't mean we know how to draw or even care about drawing - fun fact: I do care - so, you don't have to draw anything just because these pages are called Free Draw. Sketch a frame you have in mind, write ideas, collect earth elements from... Earth, and let those blank pages to spark your imagination.

It was a beautiful tradition. Created out of love.

Tsar Alexander III, was born in mid 19th century. He was Emperor of Russia, King of Poland and Grand Duke of Finland, but more importantly, he was a loving husband. He loved his wife, the Empress Maria Feodorovna, very dearly and did whatever he could to make her happy and see a smile of excitement on her face.

In 1885, to celebrate their 20th anniversary, Alexander decided to do something different. The inspiration for it, most likely, came from the Empresss aunt, Princess Vilhelmine Marie of Denmark. She owned a marvelous Easter egg that captivated Marias imagination in her childhood.

And so, Tsar Alexander commissioned master jeweler, Peter Carl Faberge, to craft him the Hen Egg, which was a very clean, beautiful and unique master piece of a jewelry. The egg shell is an opaque white that opens to reveal a matte yellow-gold yolk. Inside the open egg you can find a multicolored gold hen that also opens. Inside the hen, a minute diamond replica of the imperial crown from which a small ruby pendant was suspended. Unfortunately these last to elements have been lost.

That egg was a heaven-sent gift to Maria. She was so delighted that Alexander had commissioned Carl Faberge to design another egg the next year. It became a beautiful tradition, for Maria to receive the world's most beautiful and surprising Easter eggs.

In total, Peter Carl Faberge, crafted 69 jeweled eggs, of which 57 survive today. To give an example of how rare and luxurious these eggs are nowadays, in 2013, Victor Vekselberg revealed he had spent over $100 million purchasing nine certain Faberge eggs.

The story behind the Faberge eggs is one of my favorite, for two reasons: first, because it was a tradition created to express love and inspire someone else. Second, Peter Carl Faberge was given complete freedom for the design of the eggs. His creativity and imagination is what really made this tradition go in the history books.

There are still a few missing Faberge eggs and so if you happen to find any you'll be the luckiest person in all of history. Not only you'll make a fortune, but also you get to be a hero who helped tell a lost tale and restore pieces of time itself.

I'm happy to reveal that I have found some missing Faberge eggs, but not the actual ones. What I found was almost as good because I learned about a beautiful tradition that was created out of love. That tradition is what inspired me to capture this image.

With that, I present to you The Missing Faberge Eggs.

Exposure Triangle

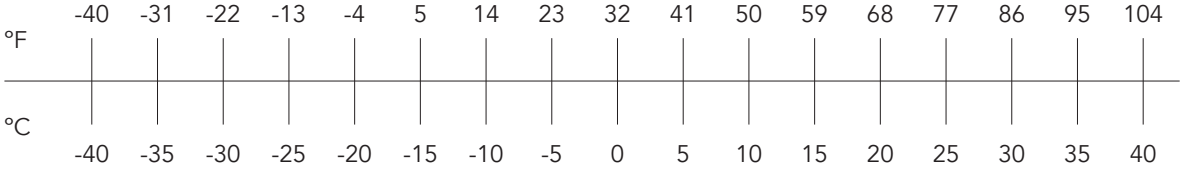

How to use the Exposure Triangle

1. Start with an exposure you like, let's say photographing a flower in sunlight at 100 ISO (to keep the image as clean as possible), f/8 to get the flower and background in focus and 1/30 shutter speed as the light meter suggested.

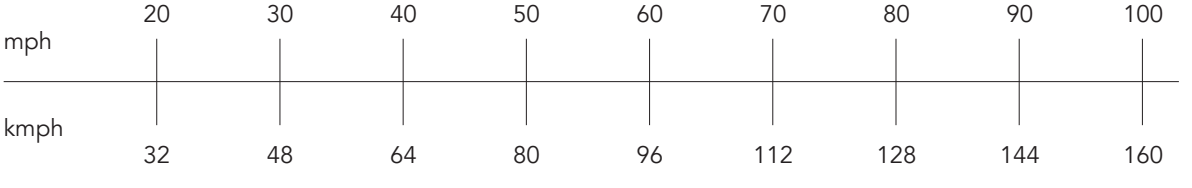

2. Adjust one parameter: keep the ISO on 100 to keep the image as clean as possible but change the aperture to f/2.8 to isolate the flower from the background. If you count, on the triangle, you'll notice you jumped three full stops. With that, you let more light in.

3. Adjust the remain parameter: to get the right amount of light, adjust the shutter speed to close faster. Count three stops on the triangle and you'll get 1/250.
